Thursday, January 21. 1703.

From the Paris Gazette, dated Jan. 20.

Madrid, Dec. 26.

THE Advices from the King tell us, that on the 16th of this Month he arriv'd at Figueras, the first Place in the Dominions of Spain; As soon as it was known that his Catholick Majesty was come into the Kingdom, The Great Council appointed to manage the Government in his Absence, ceas'd to act; and Couriers were sent to him every Night, with the Dispatches and Advices of all the Councils. On the 17th, his Majesty lay at Gironne, and arriv'd at Barcelona on the 20th. On the 22d he went to our Lady of Montserrat, where he kept his Christmas; and we are inform'd that his Majesty is to set out from thence to Day, to return hither by the way of Saragosa, Tarazona, Agreda, Almazan, and other Places. They write from Strasburg of the 8th, that on the 5th, 14 Hussars were brought in thither: They were taken near the Sorr, whither they were advanc'd; our Troops being so well dispos'd into Quarters, that Alsatia is no longer incommoded with their Excursions. They have already form'd 2 Companies of them of 50 Men each at Strasburg; and hope in a short time to make up 2 more. The Sieur Damini, who serv'd in Landau during the Siege of that Place, is made Governour of Newbourg; and the Person who was Major in the same Place, is made the King's Lieutenant in New Brisac. We have Advice, that the Regiment of Cuirassiers of Darmstadt has repass'd the Rhine, to joyn the Troops that are drawing together to be employ'd against the Elector of Bavaria. The Elector Palatine has sent another Regiment to cover his Dutchy of Newbourg on the Danube.

They write from Metz of the 12th, that they are about to send Forrage from thence for the Horse that are garrison'd in Nancy, where they are going to work on the Fortifications of that City. The Inhabitants are well satisfi'd with the good Discipline which the Count D'Avejan, who commands there, makes the Troops observe. The Duke of Lorraine, who was some Days in the Chartreuse of Nancy, is gone to reside at Mirecourt near Remiremont.

'Tis said the Duke of Burgundy will have under him next Campaign in Flanders the Marshals de Villeroy, Rosen, Vauban, Montrevel, and Tallard; That the Marshal de Boufflers will command a small Body of Forces towards the Sea; That the Marshal de Villars is to command a considerable Army in Germany; the Marshal de Chamilly another on the Lower Rhine; and the Marquess d'Uxelles another on the Upper Rhine. The King has given leave to the Count de Thesse to return to Court from Italy. The Marshal de Villars set out on the 14th for Germany. The last Letters from Languedoc, and the Sevennes, confirm that the Malecontents who have taken Arms continue their Disorders; and add, that a good number of those People went not long since, in the middle of the Day, into the little Town of Sauve, assaulted and took the House of the Lord of that Place, carry'd away all the Silver and Goods of Value that they found in it; broke the rest of the Furniture of the House in Pieces, and committed other Disorders which pass over in silence; after which they retir'd. On the 5th of this instant January, they burnt the Church of Bernis, a Village within a League and an half of Nismes; upon which one of the Captains of the Train-Bands of that City march'd out with his Company against them, and a sharp Skirmish ensu'd, in which the said Captain with 25 of his Men were kill'd, the rest retreating to Nismes with great Precipitation. These Letters add, that the Malecontents keep for the most part in the Woods, and Pray together very frequently; and that shewing great Spite particularly to the Priests, those of the Villages about Nismes are all fled into that City.
